National Commitment to Skills & Training

At Capital One, we know that with great power comes great responsibility. We dedicate ourselves to doing the right thing by our customers and the local community through our corporate responsibility programme.

When we say we want to 'Change Banking for Good' through our community programme, we set about demonstrating it with our actions and behaviors, starting right on our doorstep.

At Capital One, this vision to goes beyond our customers and products - and by bringing innovation, greater accessibility and humanity to an industry that has opportunity to add greater value to society, we believe we are doing just that through educational and community programmes that collectively have touched the lives of almost 10,000 people and 1,500 students in our communities since 2012.

The Better Society Awards Judges have described our efforts as having defined reach, tackling specific challenges that people face in in their community based on clear insight and research and actively helping reduce the issues of social mobility. We will change banking for good.
